Mysterious Readers
and Co.
Statewide
Planning Committee

How did
You hear about *Mysterious Readers
and Co.?*

- Well... lets see --
- ✓ Local TV news
 - ✓ Junior heard it at school
 - ✓ TV Good Morning Show
 - ✓ Saw a poster at the Recreation Center
 - ✓ Flyer at Rotary (I liked that flyer)
 - ✓ Read it in the newspaper
 - ✓ There was an each-one-call-one telephone campaign
 - ✓ Dropped in the Library
 - ✓ A little bird told me

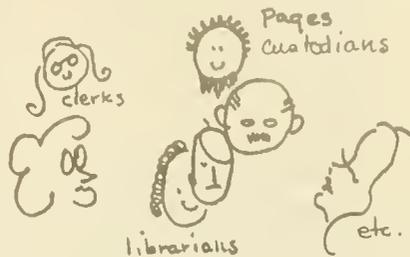

WOW!

Local Planning Committee

Your Staff

Who read the mail
(You did, didn't you?)
That sped
From Tallahassee
To Spread
The word about *Mysterious Readers
and Co.*

Or maybe this is the staff. . .

Or this. . .

The end result is the same. Now, YOU have
To make plans and Spread the word.

Also --

There was a storytelling workshop for volunteers from Jr. Women's Club

There was a puppet workshop for anyone interested in working with children.

Heard an inquiry to our radio announcer about a roving-reporter, interview-type program from the Public Library (about Mysterious Readers and Co. of course)

Saw someone building a haunted house (Can you do that?)

Heard one librarian suggest to another that all it took was a little rearrangement of mental furniture. (Now that's an evocative image. "Where shall we put the mental bureaucracy?" Wonder what's been swept under the rug? etc. etc.)

There's just generally been a lot of talk!

Hear Ye!

THIS GREAT HOST¹

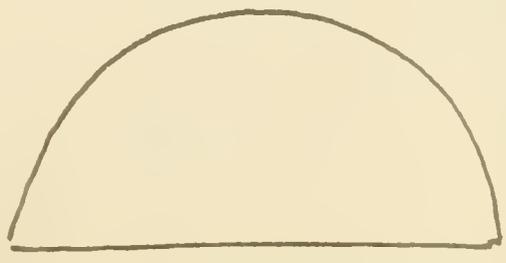

Does it need to be catalogued?

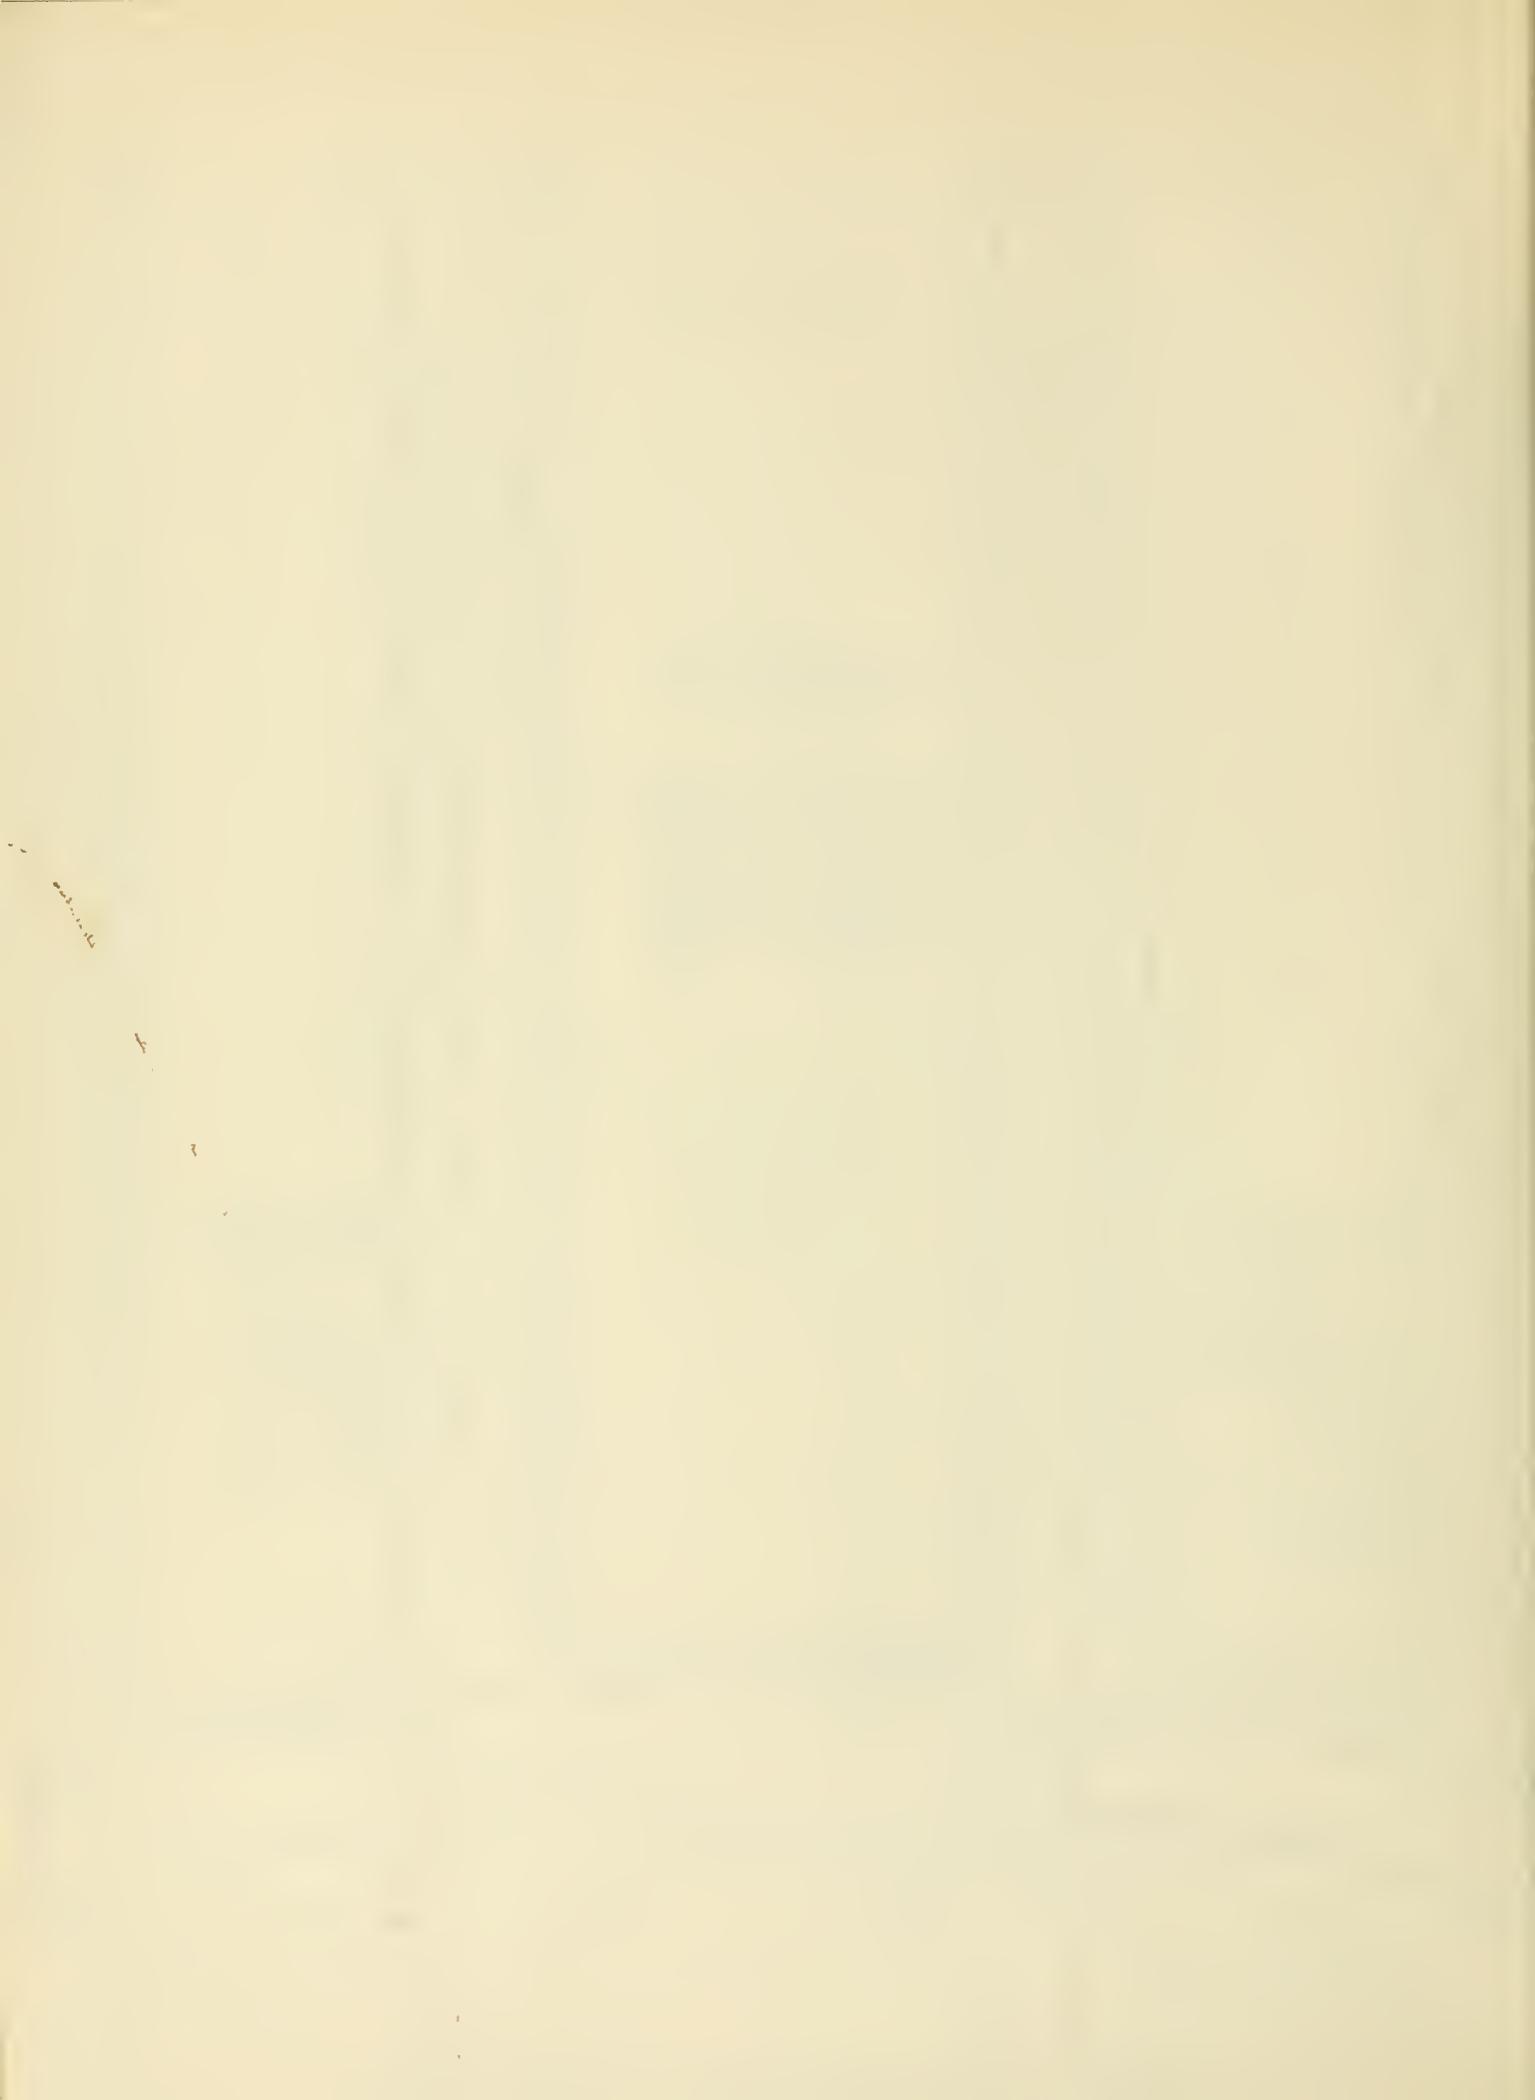

The infinite variety.
The young and younger,
The rich and poor,
Gifted and denied,
The shades and tones
of skin and mind?

NO

What needs to be catalogued are your attitudes and responses to those children enmeshed in this particular moment in childhood

What needs to be catalogued are the ways you struggle to maintain expectancy and enthusiasm

Then there was the teacher who moved an old bathtub into her classroom-- put pillows in it and let the children climb in to read

THE ENVIRONMENT

Can you create some private places?

How about some large refrigerator crates lined on the inside (By kids, of course) with magazine cutouts, or posters, or wallpaper samples - used as reading nooks, listening posts, recording booths?

Use these or write your own.

1. Say, kids...Looking for something interesting to do this summer? Join Mysterious Readers and Co. at your public library. There'll be a haunted house and mysteries to solve and friends to make. Go to the Children's Room to register and receive your special ID card, anytime between June _____ and _____. See you there!
2. Mysterious Readers? What's that? At the library? A badge? A haunted house? A real detective? Mysteries? Questions? Don't ask anymore. Go to your public library between June _____ and _____ and find out all about Mysterious Readers and Co. for yourself.
3. Mr. John Haldane once said, "Now my suspicion is that the universe is not only queerer than we suppose, but queerer than we can suppose." Mysterious Readers and Co. at your public library is setting out this summer to investigate some of the queer and unusual things in the world. Come join us. Everyone is welcome. Registration is _____.
4. Listen to some of the new books that Mysterious Readers and Co. are reading: A Trick of Light; The Ice Ghosts Mystery; The Secret of Crazy Quilt; The Man Without a Face; Ghost Paddle; The Witch of Fourth Street; Underground Man; But that's not all that's going on this summer at your public library--there are movies and puppet shows and clubs and places to be with people and places to be quiet. It's really neat--Come on down to _____ and we'll tell you all about Mysterious Readers and Co.

II. Footnotes -- page 10

1. Shakespeare, William - Hamlet. Act I, v 166
2. Haldane, John Burdon Sanderson - Possible Worlds
3. It's a bird!

Idea Page

The following suggestions to involve or interest children are taken from an article entitled "Photography" which appeared in Synergy for September 1972 by Dennis Maness:

- 1) Use photos in place of or in addition to poster, paintings, etc., as decoration.
- 2) Buy a lot of cheap (50¢ to $1) old box cameras and circulate these to kids when you have a program involving photography. A good source for old cameras is a thrift/second-hand store. Maybe your Friends organization will buy you a nice collection of the Instamatic-type camera ($4 to $10); film may be easier to get for these.
- 3) Organizations such as Kodak, UNESCO, and the New York Museum of Modern Art send traveling exhibits around the country for just the price of postage. Apply for one of these.
- 4) Use frames in which you can change the photos and have a monthly contest to "fill the frame."
- 5) Photos can show how to use the library, e.g., a photo-essay on how to check out a book or how to use the audio-visual equipment.
- 6) Use a Polaroid to take portraits of kids who win contests or complete reading programs.
- 7) Use a Polaroid to take portraits of kids who don't win contests or complete reading programs.
- 8) Photograph behind-the-scenes activities of the library such as book processing, ("My goodness, I didn't know you had to do all that!") and display them.
- 9) Have kids make their own cameras and award a prize for the biggest, smallest, prettiest, funniest, etc., working one. All they need is a light-tight box and some film. Kodak puts out an excellent pamphlet (free!) on the making and use of a pinhole camera.

- 10) If your newspaper or city government doesn't sponsor a citywide photo contest, you do it and display the results. If another organization does have a contest, invite them to use the library to display the entries.
- 11) Have a businessman (policeman, teacher, worker, any type of person in your local community) -of-the-month. Photograph him, his business, at work, in the library (!) and display the prints in a prominent place. This is a good way to involve people in the library who wouldn't think of it otherwise.
- 12) Have the kids make puppets or dolls by pasting photos of themselves onto cardboard and then tying the various parts of the body together with string.
